Kent tourism businesses step closer to national glory

Two tourism businesses in Kent have been announced as finalists in the annual Enjoy England Awards for Excellence it has been revealed today.

The Awards, organised by national tourism body VisitEngland, celebrate some of the very best tourism businesses in the UK, recognising businesses that demonstrate commitment to high quality, helping to make England a world-class destination.

Kent's finalists were both winners at Tourism South East's Excellence Awards in October and have battled it out with tourism businesses across the UK to make it through to the national stage. The contenders will be judged alongside two other businesses in each category before the Gold winners are announced on St George's Day at a glittering awards ceremony to be held in the Corn Exchange at the Brighton Dome on 23 April.

They join 5 other finalists representing the South East at the Awards; no other region has achieved more finalists, making it the best year ever for the Beautiful South.

Port Lymppe's Livingstone Lodge Overnight Safari, the UK's only overnight safari lodge will be vying for Gold in the the Best Tourism Experience category and Coldharbour Cottage in Stone-in-Oxney will be hoping to be named Self Catering Holiday of the Year.

'We are delighted to be hosting the Enjoy England Awards for Excellence here in the Beautiful South' said Tourism South East Chief Executive Mike Bedingfield, 'the announcement of so many finalists in our region affirms the incredibly high-standard of entrants we had in our regional awards; and the quality of the tourism businesses in the South East. I wish both Livingstone Lodge and Coldharbour Cottage the very best of luck on the big night.'
